

Annemie van den Dries

Belgian, born and raised in Antwerp.

Studied at KULeuven, Campus Carolus (Catholic University Leuven, campus in Antwerp) and obtained a MA in Applied Economics and International Relations, spec. in Consular Sciences.

Was a teacher in Economics, Social and Fiscal Law and Languages, mainly French, for many years in Universities of Applied Sciences in Ghent and in Kortrijk.

Got involved with the Erasmus programme from the very beginning in 1987.

And was asked to start the Office of International Relations first in Artevelde Ghent and later in VIVES Kortrijk. This meant of course also writing and coordinating projects and being involved in networks like SPACE, CiCea, Coehre,...

Of course, also travelling around the world, including China and India and Russia.

Most exciting is meeting people and learning about cross-cultural communication, co-teaching with colleagues from abroad, until last year.

At present very much involved in assessing projects mainly Erasmus+, and that is why Annemie was asked to talk to you about the essence of project writing.
